SCSSS's Sitabai Thite College of Pharmacy organized webinar on “An Overview of Vaccine Industry”.

The webinar by Dr. Shankar Chinchkar provided a comprehensive insight into the vaccine industry by offering deep understanding of its history, current state and future prospects.

Dr. Chinchkar commenced the webinar by providing a historical overview of vaccines. He discussed the evolution of vaccine production techniques and highlighted the transition from conventional approaches to modern recombinant DNA technology.

Dr. Chinchkar delved into the intricate process of vaccine development, from the initial research and preclinical studies to clinical trials, regulatory approvals and post-market surveillance. He also discussed various vaccine types including inactivated, live attenuated, subunit and mRNA vaccines and also explained their applications in preventing a wide range of infectious diseases.

Discussed the challenges faced by the vaccine industry, such as the need for cold chain storage and distribution and highlighted recent innovations in vaccine technology.

Also shed the light on recently approved second malarial vaccine.
